

Dear Families,

In light of the tragic school shooting in Texas today, I write to you to offer my encouragement and support.

The news of today's events is devastating. My heart goes out to the families of the victims and school employees affected by this shocking act of violence.

Please rest assured that our TCS faculty and staff are always committed to keeping your children safe and secure. We are a community, a family. As a family, it is in times like these, that we need a little reassurance that we are okay. We are together and strong.

I suggest that you do not discuss this or watch coverage of this terrible news in the presence of young children. It is important to remember that our children look to us for security and they take their cues from our words and actions. If we are safe and secure, they will feel safe and secure as well.

Join me in sending love to the families of today's victims. As we go forward into our last few weeks of school, let us be grateful and reverent for all that we have.

My best,
